ERRATUM OF AMERICATEL CORPORATION

On June 30, 2003, Americatel Corporation ("Americatel"),<sup>1</sup> through counsel, filed comments in the above-captioned proceeding with the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC" or "Commission"). Through an oversight, Americatel failed to notice that its conclusion did not properly reflect the positions taken in its comments, as filed. Upon subsequent review, Americatel discovered that certain words had not been included and others had not been deleted in its conclusion. Therefore, Americatel is submitting an erratum to correct its mistake.

Americatel's conclusion to its comments should have read as follows:

"VI. CONCLUSION

"For the reasons set forth herein, the FCC should continue to regulate the BOCs as dominant carriers and not permit them to offer long distance services on an integrated basis.

<sup>1</sup> Americatel, a Delaware corporation that is a subsidiary of ENTEL Chile, is a common carrier providing domestic and international telecommunications services. Americatel also operates as an Internet Service Provider ("ISP"). Americatel specializes in serving Hispanic communities throughout the United States, offering presubscribed (1+), dial-around, and prepaid long distance services, as well as private line and other high-speed services to its business customers. The majority of traffic carried by Americatel is dial-around in nature.

However, in the event that the Commission were to permit the BOCs to provide long distance services on an integrated basis, it should also require the BOCs to retarget all of their rates to cost and to impose additional regulatory requirements on the BOCs before permitting them to offer long distance services on an integrated basis. Alternatively, the Commission could simply permit the BOCs to continue to offer long distance services through a separate affiliate without any other new regulations provided that such affiliate had some reasonable level of independent ownership that, because of the BOCs' continuous anti-competitive conduct, may appropriately be a majority of non-BOC shareowners."

Making this correction at this time will align the conclusion of Americatel's comments with its arguments therein. The corrected comments will, therefore, be more useful to the Commission as it considers the important issues in this proceeding. Americatel apologizes to the FCC for any inconvenience that its oversight may have caused. Americatel is also submitting a corrected version of its comments and requests that the Commission replace the original version of Americatel's comments with the corrected version in the FCC's files.

Respectfully submitted,
AMERICATEL CORPORATION
